

Bryant Trustees Put End To Controversy

Wednesday morning's Board of Trustees meeting brought an end to the speculation and rumors concerning the administrative differences at Bryant College.

After meeting for several hours, the trustees released a statement which was given to the Press by Richard Twomey, temporary spokesman for the college.

Richard Twomey reads statement to the press.

The statement reads as follows:

"The Trustees of Bryant College met today to consider the major problems arising from the transition of the College to its new Smithfield campus. This transition has had a significant effect on all aspects of the institution's operation. The Trustees have taken steps to clarify any ambiguities in the responsibilities of administrative officers and to facilitate communication on all levels. The Executive Committee will meet with the President and Vice Presidents on a monthly basis to deal with any difficulties."

The Press was specifically requested to hold the release until all members of the Bryant Community could be informed of the Board's decision.

At a Student Senate meeting which took place on Monday of this week, it was reported that Mr. Frank Delmonico would resign for personal reasons. He also stated that Mr. Joseph Hagan would do the same. Dr. Manion made no comment; however, it was reported the next day in the Providence JOURNAL that three Vice Presidents might resign.

and trustees met with the whole Faculty Federation to explain the decisions made by the Board of Trustees, after which the student body was informed by Father Paul Haas, one of the trustees. Father Haas also took questions from students gathered in the Rotunda.

Later Wednesday afternoon, Dr. Evarts met with members of the Press to elaborate on the statement issued earlier. Dr. Evarts said in clarifying the earlier statement that the president and vice presidents would remain the same and that no resignations had been received.

In regard to the situation involving William C. Robbie, Chief of Security at Bryant College, Dr. Evarts said that the matter is administrative in nature and will be handled accordingly. Dr. Evarts said that Mr. Robbie's status is unchanged by any of the recent events and that the matter will be handled as soon as possible.

Shortly after the meeting, Dr. Evarts held an

Senate Reactions

by Dave Conklin

After interviewing Dave Brown and Barry Gerald, it has been made clear to me that the big Bryant business machine has come very close to slipping a cog or at least three levers on Wed., January 31. It seems that the conduct of Dr. Evarts has placed three vice presidents into the position where each feels that he can no longer serve Bryant College in an administrative capacity. Wow...three administrators threaten to quit if Evarts remains.

Now the inquisitive Bryant student asks, "How come?...Why?...What's going on?...Why are we not informed?" At the general assembly held in the Rotunda at 12:30, on Wed., January 31, the answer came as a bunch of meaningless rhetoric from Father Haas. (Irony how he was chosen as our intermediary). "...the trustees will meet once a month with...to discuss...I am not authorized to..." Brown turned it as a "side step." The students knew no more before Father Haas spoke than after, except that they wouldn't get an answer.

Brown speculated that the students will never obtain a complete answer to this question. The reason being that the nature of this whole hush-hush situation would be detrimental to Bryant's reputation if it was ever made public. He felt the trustee's would delay visible action until only superficial ties with the current situation could be made. It was also speculated that the trustees have made a deal with Evarts and the vice presidents, much like the verbal pacifier given to the students in the Rotunda. Either the vice presidents will hand in resignations over the summer or Dr. Evarts will resign at the April meeting. In any case the loser will receive a bag of high recommendations as a booby prize and no one will walk away empty handed.

Ambiguity Sets Tone Of Assembly

by Bob Rhault

This past Wednesday, the student body met with the members of the Student Senate and a representative of the Board of Trustees, Rev. Haas, in the Rotunda.

The purpose of the assembly was to hear the results of a trustee meeting held earlier in the day. The result of the trustee meeting was brought forth by their representative, Father Haas, to the open assemblage of Bryant students.

Father Haas began, "the trustees of Bryant College met today to consider the major problems arising from the transition of the college to its new Smithfield Campus. This transition has had a significant effect on all aspects of the institution's operation. The trustees have taken steps to clarify any ambiguities in the responsibilities of administrative officers and to facilitate communications on all levels. The executive committee will meet with the president and vice presidents on a monthly basis to deal with any difficulties."

Editorially Speaking

Let's All Come Together

After viewing Wednesday afternoon's happening, I feel that a few comments are in order. Since last October, when this whole disorder began to take shape, people here at Bryant have really outdone themselves. The Bryant rumor system has been at its best. Remember, for one to make decisions, facts must be obtained--rumors don't hold much fact. Internal troubles will always be a part of an educational institution, but these troubles must not be drawn out. They must be resolved.

Here are a few messages to all concerned with the problem:

To the students:

We are taught time and time again to review the facts and then make a decision. So please do this. Wait before you as an individual become a part of an unfounded rumor. Obtain the facts. The one way to do this is by attending the Senate Meeting on Monday at 3:15 p.m. At this meeting, knowledge can be gained and then one can separate rumors from facts about the whole mess.

To the Faculty:

Right on! It's good to see you are actually doing something instead of being pushed around. The only advice is don't stop now. Become more a part of the system which, in effect, you manage. Faculty and students are one in this situation facing us now; the only way to resolve these internal hassles is together. Everyone can learn for each other.

To the Administration:

Gentlemen, if your aim in this whole thing was to put the institution in a near-chaotic state, you succeeded. Now let's stop the game and get back to helping people learn. Isn't that why we are here? If something has to be done to gain order and stability in this organization, do it now, or believe me, life is going to get worse for everyone--students, faculty, and you, also.

To the Trustees:

Wow! I really thought you would help these troubled times; but as in the past--wrong again. The statement read to the students and faculty on Wednesday was, as some people have said, a big "whitewash." Gentlemen, you can't cover a black background with white paint; there will always be streaks. The only thing to do is use paint remover when needed.

Pell-Tiernan Internship

During one's college life, it is seldom for a student to be involved in actual career experiences. When the chance arises, there is usually a large response.

Bryant College is proud to sponsor such an opportunity. Under the direction of the offices of Senator Pell and U.S. Representative Tiernan of Rhode Island, eight students from Bryant will be able to get a picture as to the activities in Washington.

Students have made it known that there just aren't enough programs that yield the knowledge that they would like to obtain. Well, here is an opportunity that shouldn't be passed up. The experience could prove to be invaluable and will give an insight as to how men in the capital operate within their political surroundings.

The ARCHWAY strongly believes that this program should be supported and that more programs of equal merit should be introduced to expand the Bryant learning experience. Ms. Palter and other professors like her should be commended for expanding the academic areas which have been neglected by Bryant.

New Senate Elections

Any Bryant Student, Administrator, or Faculty member, even in a semi-conscious state, could tell you that the Student Senate of Bryant College has been completely unrepresentative of the student body. We think that this has been proved by many students' disapproval of the Senate's irresponsible actions taken relating to the events of the past several weeks.

We feel that the current interest shown by the student body should continue. New elections are coming up shortly, according to the laws of the Senate.

If the students are truly interested, they will actively participate in new elections; and perhaps turn out a more representative vote. Remember, the officers of the Senate who you saw and heard in the Rotunda Wednesday were elected by a mere 19% of the students.

The Elusive Dove Has Landed

After long, hard years of conflict in a small, Indo-Chinese land, it seems that the elusive Dove of Peace has touched down; and Johnny will come marching, limping, or will be carried on a stretcher or in a coffin; but he will be coming home from the longest foreign conflict that these United States have ever been involved in. Words we use regularly, given time, will vanish from our daily dialogue--words like demilitarize, intervention, imperialistic, and various other verbs and adjectives.

There will be joyous reunions, filled with tears of joy. But for others, there will be nothing as the tears have been shed, the words said, and another life lost needlessly to the ignorance of armed conflict will be recorded in that book of military record.

Now, we must get on with the business of creating a better life for Americans at home. Our form of democracy is by no means perfect; but it has stood the test of time and has proven to be most fair. There is no way one can deny it; ours is the greatest country on the face of this crust of a planet. It is time that those who fashion themselves as hardhats put down their fists of protest and instead reach out for the meaning and the truth that can be found by attempting to bridge the "generation gap." In turn, it is time for those who fashion themselves as hippies, yuppies, freaks, heads, take your pick; resolve their ideological differences, put down their protest placards, and present a united front to the leaders of our great land, and demand that this Paris Peace Pact be the beginning of a lasting peace. A peace which we can all abide by, live with, and grow with.

There need never be another Vietnam if we do not want it. We have seen an end to the draft, an archaic system which held the power to snatch up young men in their prime and thrust them onto the battlefield. The specter of the draft no longer stalks our big cities and small towns. The elusive Dove of Peace has landed. Come together, people of this land, to construct her a nest upholstered with love, goodwill and common understanding.

It's Nothing Personal But....

Dear Editor:

Within the last week, numerous articles have appeared in the Providence JOURNAL concerning a rift in the Bryant Administration. Our hard-working Senate president, Dave Brown, wanted to solve the situation by the only means he knows-- his mouth. Therefore, an article appeared in the JOURNAL explaining that three vice presidents would leave if Dr. Evarts was not thrown out. I am not questioning Dr. Evarts' personal life, ability as a president, or any related subject. What I want to express is President Brown's publicity-seeking, egotistical ways in order to gain the favour of the newspapers, faculty, and administration. His personal threats of student strikes, sitdowns, and Bryant disorder are needless. At a school such as Bryant, where the problem is whether to swim in the pool or go to the Rathskellar, it's unnecessary to make an administration problem his own. What provoked this editorial was seeing that if the trustees did not back the senate's demands, then all senators and officers would resign. This would be the best possible choice. What Bryant needs is a Senate that will work to better the social functions by themselves and with the Greeks rather than to better his social life with all his Senate office groupies and doing all those horrible things the Senate claims Dr. Evarts is doing in his office. Having previously been in the same group as president Brown, it's quite possible that he and his cohorts have a fantasy of political stardom and quite possible, Dave has his eyes on Doc Evarts' job where he can listen to himself all day. My resolution of his problem is that he get a job as a disc jockey at Bryant where we have the option of turning him on and off.

Thank you,
Rolf Schnur

Come Out And Join The Band!

Bryant students, last semester, you gave the Stage Band a very encouraging response at its first concert. As a member of the Band, I still remember the shouts for "More! More!" Well, there isn't going to be any more if we don't start getting support from you, the student body. Our band has not yet been graced with a budget and will probably never get one unless we can show those that are withholding the money we need that we are an entity. Yes, there is a Stage Band; and if you care anything at all about music, don't ignore this letter like you have all the rest. Come out and join the Band!

Open Forum Concerning Senate Slated For Monday

by Dave Conklin

At the general assembly held in the Rotunda, a great deal of verbal flash was shot at the Senate. Apparently, some students were disgruntled over the way the Senate was handling the situation.

Most everyone was particularly annoyed at being left in the dark while questions were continually evaded. The Senate has urged me to extend a plea to the Bryant Community.

The Senate especially urges those individuals who feel discontented with the Senate to voice their opinions. If the Senate is going against the wishes of the community, then let it be known. The Senate is here to serve you. If you agree, then show your support and become informed through attending the meeting.

Please come to the "Open Forum" in the Auditorium at 3:15 p.m. on Monday, February 5, 1973.

When Father Haas was asked about the contents of a certain report about the administration signed by some administrators, he cleverly evaded the query saying that a four-man committee was set up to determine whether the content of the report should be made confidential. The committee voted that the content should not be made public. Father Haas went on to make an analogy. He likened the situation for the confidentiality of the report to a human situation by saying that, "it's like someone asking me about student government. I have an opinion, and other people have an opinion of me, but no one can force me to make that opinion public unless I want to make it public. So it was in the interest of everyone concerned that our analyses and interpretations should remain confidential. And therefore, we collected all copies and they are in the possession of our committee."

The question remains whether the trustees and the administration are cleverly employing subterfuge or whether they are honestly acting in the best interest of the school. It is very difficult to analyze their actions without knowing the content of the mystery report. However, whether the report reveals nothing at all, the fact still remains that there is a definite cog in the working relationship between the top administrators of the school. I cannot foresee any type of progress for the college if the movements of a normal administration are so severely deadlocked that three vice-presidents have vowed to resign if their immediate "superior" is not removed from office. I'm sure that either side no longer looks very favorably upon each other. Personally, I don't really care if their allegations are correct or completely false. My interest in the matter is more deeply embodied because the major decisions of the school; that is, the decisions which are destined to guide a structurally re-located college through its waning stages, are being decided upon by individuals who, by all apparent evidence, have personality conflicts, to say the least.

I feel that the student body has been cleverly misled. Call it rhetoric, evasiveness, artful dodging, or whatever. (One usually learns several synonyms for ambiguous in his short stay here at Bryant.) The students' welfare is being grossly overlooked by the Administration, and in this regard I feel that they are neglecting one of their prime responsibilities. With this in mind, I feel the Administration of Bryant College should come to realize that the students are anticipating, and rightfully so, an answer which can justify or clarify the events of the past month.

INSIGHT

Please Make The Hurt Go Away

by Richard S. Woolf

Being a member of the force for nine years, Desk Sergeant O'Malley was well familiar with the flotsam that frequented the streets of his precinct. With the Mayor's drive to clean up the streets of all undesirables, O'Malley gave his true Irish brogue a real workout while discussing the task with his men. O'Malley gave us the hard sell; but he stopped short when he saw a new face in the crowd—mine.

I was fresh out of the nearby police academy, finishing third in a class of forty-eight. My high school buddies used to tease me, saying they had never heard of a "heeb" cop. But faced with a choice of taking over my Dad's grocery store business, I decided to join the men in blue.

"What's your name, rookie," O'Malley bullied.

"Miller. Scott Miller, sir," I answered nervously.

"Miller," O'Malley bellowed, "we've got ourselves a tough problem, and you, a rookie...well, I guess we can show you the ropes; but if you get burned by the cut of the twine...well, that's your problem."

"Yes, sir," I responded uneasily.

"Jones, take Mr. Miller under your wing...keep an eye out on him," said O'Malley.

"Yessir; but he's got to know that I'm not about to nurse him along, as a matter of fact, give us quadrant D. I figure I can break him in on breaking up that prostitution ring," said Sergeant Jones.

It was sticky warm on an August evening when I first pounded the beat on Bradford Street. The Sarge operated the squad car while I remained on foot. We were linked by radio, and we made quarter-hourly checks. The plan was that if I saw any females loitering around the various cafes, I would ask them to move on, watching where they would go, possibly leading to clues for identifying the flesh peddlers.

Rounding the corner onto a small alley, I heard a sound, almost like someone crying. Moving down the dark way, I could hear a young female crying. Before me, on a splintered orange crate, sat a wisp of a girl, no more than twenty years old, sobbing quietly to herself. I must have startled her as I approached, for she tried to make a fast break. Holding her arm gently but firmly, I asked for her name.

"I guess you're going to arrest me, aren't you?" the young girl asked.

"No, that isn't why I must ask you to move on. This is not the type of neighborhood for a young person to frequent, and I'm sure your parents are worried for your safety," I suggested.

With those words, the child who had had an emotionally stormy life, explained herself.

"Daddy abandoned Mom and me when I was a baby. If it had not been for Mom's man with money, we'd have gone hungry. But Mom got sick, explained life to me, and I met the world on harsh terms. My standard line was, 'I'm hungry, Mr. I have pains in my stomach, please make the hurt go away. The man would make the hurt go away; but what he would take in return became too high a price to pay. That's why I'm here hungry, and I won't let myself be abused again.'"

My heart melted; my stomach was tying and untying and tying again. I wanted to show emotion to her or for her, but I knew I couldn't. Instead, I remained silent. Turning to the large hazel eyes looking up to me between strands of true blonde hair, I reached to my back pocket and pulled out my wallet. Looking strangely at me, the young girl was surprised when I pulled out a twenty-dollar bill. Pressing it firmly into her hand, I whispered the address of my father's store, asking her to come Monday morning to work. With a Mona Lisa half-smile on her pretty face, I walked her to the bus depot. As the bus pulled up, tears streamed from her eyes, her tiny frame shook, and she kissed me goodbye.

Somehow, I knew she would show up at the store for work on Monday morning, but I wasn't sure about what she'd look like. Leaving the back room, I noticed a pretty customer at the counter.

"Can I help you," I asked.

"You already have helped me; I am here to return a kindness," the young girl replied.

It was the girl I had helped; but she was beautiful—almost like a diamond in the rough.

"You have made the hurt go away. I will never have to return to that life again," she said.

At that point, Dad left the back room. It was a good thing, too; I had become too misty-eyed to remain in her presence.

Recent Developments Of Radio Station

Ross Dubin

For the past two years, the Bryant College Radio Station has been working hard on setting up a radio station. As stated in the November 3 issue, according to Dr. Barry Fullerton, Vice-President of Student Affairs, the Bryant station was to go on the air on February 1, 1973, based on his decision made last October. However, it now appears that the station will not make this deadline.

In order to understand why the station will not be on the air next week, this reporter interviewed Stephen Boulter, the station's General Manager. From the interview, it was found that unanticipated problems have fallen upon this organization. Specifically, the main problems are: the Federal Communication Commission's granting a license; the need for soundproofing; air conditioning, and power lines in the radio room; and the allocation of funds. As Stephen stated, "all things considered, including the FCC license, the only thing that is holding us up is the financing of the modifications of the Radio Room and the willingness of the Administration to accept us as equals and experts in this situation."

After questioning a recording engineer for one of the local FM stations, he told me that soundproofing, cooling, and power capacity are essential in designing a radio room. Apparently, the architect who designed the new campus and the radio room overlooked these features. In any case, the twelve-thousand dollars already spent on the station will literally go up in smoke if the bare essentials are not met.

In the past, the Administration has been lax in the support of the Radio Station. However, lately the Administration has been more responsive to the station. As the station engineer said, "the DJ's don't even have a chair to sit down on."

Certified Secretary Examination

Bryant College, Smithfield, RI, will be a testing center for the Certified Secretary Examination in 1973. This examination, to be held for the first time at Bryant on May 4 and 5, 1973, will be conducted with the approval of the Institute for Certifying Secretaries, a department of the National Secretaries' Association (International).

The purposes of the program are:

To improve secretarial personnel by giving specific direction to an educational program and by providing a means of measuring the extent of professional development.

To provide secretaries with the assurance which comes from having attained a professional educational standard.

To promote the professional identity of the exceptional secretary.

To assist management in selecting qualified secretaries.

To plan and sponsor additional programs of continuing professional development for the Certified Professional Secretary.

Bryant College was chosen because it has the facilities necessary for the administration of these examinations. Candidates, who wish to participate in this program, are urged to get in touch with the Department of Secretarial and Office Education, Bryant College, Smithfield, RI, 02917. Telephone: (401) 231-1200.

Movie Review

"Royal Hunt Of The Sun"

by david t. pandozzi

Peter Shaffer describes his play, "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," as 'total theatre' and Trinity Square Repertory Company, under the direction of Artistic Director Adrian Hall, certainly delivers just that in his spectacular production. From the gathering in the small Spanish town where the cool and refreshing water spills out of the well as Pizarro dreams unfolds to the defying and courageous climbing of the Andes Mountains, we see the craft and cunning direction of Mr. Hall as the cast of 30 creates an emotional and historical evening of theatre.

A play concerning two civilizations, two religions and two men, the 'Royal Hunt' brings to the stage a story of men in search of great fortunes and fame. Francisco Pizarro, a man of illegitimate birth, is discontented with his meaningless and uneventful life and wants to accomplish a task that will bring him fame and fortune and a place in history. On his journey to wealth and fame, he and his conquistadors encounter many obstacles which obstruct their path. Nevertheless, the willingness and strong motivation of Pizarro, vigorously played by Richard Kneeland, they manage to attain their goal and in a climatic scene the two worlds come face to face.

The Inca Cheftain, Atahualpa, leader of his people, is one of James Eichelberger's most demanding roles. He captures the mystical essence of the part splendidly. When Pizarro and Atahualpa are the only characters present on the stage. Their dialogue between each other is truly the most inspiring in the play. From a somewhat plain, boarded up stage design with several exit and entrance ramps throughout, the stage is easily changed into numerous settings for Pizarro and Peruvians with lighting costumes and sounds. A thick and damp forest is the setting for the tired and weary soldiers who believe they will not get out alive, a warm fire is the setting for Pizarro and his men as they dream of the golden riches that await them. And especially the changes in setting by the addition of Inca Indians and their multi-colored, feathered costumes and the entrance of the Atahualpa himself gives us all the experience which Trinity is so famous for in staging its plays. With actors moving through the audience, entering high above their heads and acting practically in your lap! "The Royal Hunt of the Sun" is a true example of 'total theater' and one of Trinity Squares' best presentation this year.

Fischman Nominated Outstanding Educator

Dr. Burton L. Fischman, professor of English at Bryant College, Smithfield, RI, has been nominated to appear in the 1973 awards volume of OUTSTANDING EDUCATORS OF AMERICA. This book honors the achievements and contributions of the finest educators in the United States. Only a select number of men and women are included in the volume each year.

He also conducts a graduate course in Communications in the Bryant College Graduate Program, a course he designed and innovated in 1972.

Dr. Fischman earned the B. S. Degree in Communications Arts in 1958 at Curry College, Milton, Mass., the M.A. in English Education at Seton Hall University, South Orange, N.J., 1960; and the Ph.D. in English Education at the University of Connecticut, in 1971.

He is the author of the book "New Directions in Public Speaking," copyright 1972 and in its second printing. This book is used as a textbook in the public speaking course at Bryant.

A past president of the Touro Fraternal Association, Dr. Fischman is guest lecturer on public speaking for the United Fund of Southeastern New England; consultant on communications for Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Rhode Island, and chairman of the New Directions Committee of the Jewish Community Center of Rhode Island, a committee dealing with cultural affairs.

Dr. Fischman is married to the former Rhoda Chorney and resides in Providence with his wife and three children.

Bryant Alumnus To Speak To Management Students

On Thursday, February 8th, Mr. Gregory Parkes (class of 1950) will address management students on the topic "The Middle Road-That's Where the Action Is." Mr. Parkes' promise is that a dynamic, hardworking individual finds greater personal achievement and satisfaction in the free-wheeling management atmosphere of the middle size company where, in Mr. Parkes', opinion, the majority of Bryant graduates will spend most of their professional lives. Mr. Parkes favors "generalism" as the stimulating way of business life as opposed to the specialist in industry.

Mr. Parkes is President of the American Chemical Works Co., the largest supplier of chemicals to industry in New England. He graduated Bryant in 1950 and earned his MBA degree from Boston University at age 21. Later he served with the State Department as Chief of the Escapee Program for the Near East. Following, he joined Bryant as Director of Student Activities and Alumni Affairs. He also has held positions as Vice President of Resbre Plastics Corp., Pawtucket, R.I. and as Vice President for Marketing with the Livermore Corp. of Boston, Mass.

Mr. Parkes' presentation will be held from 12 noon to 1 p.m. in Room 386 A & B on Thursday, February 8th.

All interested students are invited.

MBA Highlights

Guest Professor

By Dean Lebovitz

As part of its program of bringing outstanding authorities to the Bryant College campus to speak to MBA students, Professor Richard W. French was invited to take over the advanced class in "Business Organizations and Their Environment" on January 30. Professor French, a trustee of Bryant College, has had an outstanding career in business and in education. He started his business career as a roustabout in the oil fields, rising through the ranks to Manager of Drilling through Vice President of Production for Standard Oil of Ohio to President of the United Carbon Company, and then moving into the field of university education. He was awarded a B.S. in M.E. from the University of Delaware, and took graduate courses in petroleum production and management at the University of Southern California. He later completed the advanced management program at Harvard. He became the Assistant Dean of the College of Business Administration at Ohio University, served as chairman of Business Administration, and is currently Professor of Business Administration. He has many professional interests and has served on many community committees. He has written extensively in his fields of interest. The topic that he chose to discuss via the case method with out Bryant students was in the area of business ethics. The students found him to be an exceptionally interesting teacher and regretted that he had very limited class time. The students would have liked him to go further in the discussion of his subject.

Tentative Graduates

There may be as many as 50 graduates in this year's MBA graduating class—the largest in the fledgling MBA program. This is a sign that the program is starting to fulfill its purpose of preparing graduate students for careers in the fields of management by giving them the appropriate frame of reference of advanced management knowledge. In preparation for graduation, various things must be done, such as: obtaining information for the graduates for public relations, preparing diplomas, ordering caps and gowns, sending data to the Career Placement Office, assuring that the names are included in the commencement literature, especially in the program for the graduation ceremonies. All these require advanced planning. The Graduate Office has already begun to gather the data and prepare the documents required. Very soon, tentative graduates will be hearing from the Graduate Office.

Computerized MBA

The beginning of the Spring Semester marked the introduction of the use of the computer to the admissions procedure of the MBA Program. Data pertaining to the courses, students and enrollment was put into the computer. This innovation has meant a great saving in time and work in processing the spring enrollments. The Graduate Office will continue to explore the use of the computer for MBA admissions. By using the computer, the Graduate Office aims at teaching graduate students about the computer not only in courses, but also by its example, thus demonstrating the value of the computer for planning and carrying out management type operations. In this connection, a note to MBA students: It is most important that they notify the Graduate Office of any changes in their address, employment, telephone number, etc. The Computer is only as good as the information that is supplied to it.

Summer Sessions

For those MBA students who are thinking of their program beyond the Spring Semester, the Graduate Office wishes to remind them that there will be two Summer Sessions. In the first session, the classes will run from May 14 through June 21. In the second, classes will begin on June 25 and end on August 8. The academic calendar was included in the Spring Semester registration announcement. If any student needs an extra calendar, it is available in the Graduate Office.

April ATCSB Examinations

Those applicants and students who have not taken the ATGSB test or have not retaken the ATGSB exam, will have a chance to do so. The next examination will be administered on Saturday morning, April 7, at Brown University. To be admitted to this examination, the student must be sure that his application is received in Princeton, New Jersey no later than Friday, March 16.

Undergraduates

Undergraduates who are interested in exploring the possibility of entering the MBA program at Bryant College should contact the Graduate Office to obtain information about the program that will be of help to them. Students who do apply for the MBA program at Bryant will not have to submit Bryant transcripts; this will be obtained for them by the Graduate Office. Any questions pertaining to the program should be addressed to the Graduate Office. The Bryant MBA program admits students as of the Fall and Spring Semesters as well as the two Summer Sessions. Since acceptable ATGSB scores are a prerequisite for admission, students should plan on taking this examination sufficiently in advance of their intended date of admission so that their scores will be available to the Committee on Admissions.

open meeting with members of the Faculty Federation Executive Board and members of the Press. The Executive Committee consists of Mr. Pat Keeley, Mr. Wally Camper, Mr. Henry Foley, and Mr. James Ingraham. The following statement was issued:

"The faculty is always concerned with the quality of college life and feels that the institution, through trustees, administrators and faculty has the responsibility to establish an intellectual and social awareness which encourages conduct in conformity with law and contemporary community standards.

The faculty voted to establish a special committee to study the means of augmenting the faculty role in the governance of the college in cooperation with the Board of Trustees in pursuit of the optimum learning environment."

It was stated that the concern is still there; however, the matter was not at a crisis level. It was also pointed out that the faculty should be involved in the operation of the school because all problems arising in the College Community inevitably make their way into the classroom. It was also noted that the faculty was not pleased that they didn't play a greater role in the decision made by the trustees.

In pointing out that all factions of the college community should work together for the good of the college, Mr. Camper stated, "we all want the same thing."

Pictures talk. Some little boys don't.

Some inner-city ghettos have special schools. For little boys who don't talk.

Not mute little boys. But children so withdrawn, so afraid of failure, they cannot make the slightest attempt to do anything at which they might fail.

Some don't talk. Some don't listen. Most don't behave. And all of them don't learn.

One day someone asked us to help.

Through Kodak, cameras and film were distributed to teachers. The teachers gave the cameras to the kids and told them to take pictures.

And then the miracle. Little boys who had never said anything, looked at the pictures and began to talk. They said "This is my house." "This is my dog." "This is where I like to hide." They began to explain, to describe, to communicate. And once the channels of communication had been opened, they began to learn.

We're helping the children of the inner-city. And we're also helping the adults. We're involved in inner-city job programs. To train unskilled people in useful jobs.

What does Kodak stand to gain from this? Well, we're showing how our products can help a teacher—and maybe creating a whole new market. And we're also cultivating young customers who will someday buy their own cameras and film. But more than that, we're cultivating alert, educated citizens. Who will someday be responsible for our society.

After all, our business depends on our society. So we care what happens to it.

Announcement Of Pell-Tiernan Internship Program In Washington, D.C.

Under the direction of the offices of Senator Claiborne Pell and U.S. Representative Robert O. Tiernan of Rhode Island, college and university students in Rhode Island have an opportunity to visit Washington, D.C. for one week some time during next semester. This has been an annual program, and several students from Bryant have participated in the past. Among them have been Gerald Cayer, Bill Heaney, and Jim Newbury.

The program provides an interesting and personal opportunity to meet senators and representatives and other public officials at the national level. Participants get an on-the-scene view of how a congressman's office works, attend congressional hearings, visit executive offices and the Supreme Court, as well as visit other Washington highlights. The itinerary is flexible, much depending on what is happening in Washington at the time and the student's own interests.

This Spring eight Bryant students will be able to participate: four each during two separate weeks. Two will be associated with the Senator's office and the other two with the Representative's. The times scheduled are the weeks of February 12 and March 26.

There will be a brief meeting of applicants to the Pell-Tiernan program this Friday, February 2, at 12:00 p.m. in Room C-353. This is open to all persons interested in applying; they should see Ms. Elizabeth Palter (Rm 221) for applications.

The purpose of this meeting is to discuss the details of the program and make some tentative plans for the trips to Washington, D.C., the weeks of February 12 and March 26.

Please bring the completed application to this meeting. Notice of participants to the February 12 week will be given February 1-5.

Bryant Cheerleaders Spirit Personified

by Delia Roaf

Among the changes around the campus this year and an item of interest and one to notice at the Bryant basketball games is the performance of Bryant's cheerleaders. Many of you may recall that last year what began as a large squad dwindled into obscurity.

This season, under the direction of Miss Mickey Finn, the group is extremely enthusiastic and they anticipate their part has and will continue to influence the fervor of excitement charging the atmosphere at the games.

The consensus of the girls, six of the seven being freshman and only two girls having had past experience in cheering from high school, was that the important factor in cheering is not so much the cheers themselves, but the feeling behind the performance.

Speaking to the only senior of the group, Luci Smith, an Office Administration major, made the following comment:

"I like basketball and we have a great bunch of guys playing for Bryant. I went to all the games last year. What inspired me to want to become a cheerleader was the way the girls were last year. They didn't seem to have too much interest in what they were really doing. I thought that our team deserved some girls who were really sincere and I wanted to be part of them."

The cheerleaders also noted that their performance did not just apply for them, but for all of the spectators as well. Speaking to Alison Banks, a freshman whose major course of study here at Bryant is Business Administration, she spoke of her feelings about this:

"The thing that keeps me going is when I see the crowd is all high-spirited and into things like we are. It just makes you feel good; you want to just keep cheering and cheering. The more they cheer, the better you feel."

The girls' philosophy behind a non-responsive crowd is to encourage cheering so our team is aware of the support behind it.

One of the highlights of the season emphasizing that support is needed from everyone and not just a few was a game played against Quinnipiac at their home court. Rhonda Smith gives her reactions, "it really felt good...I knew that they were going to have a bus coming down to the game, but I didn't know how many; but when Bryant all walked in it really looked bad. It really was nice."

Marilyn Blais, captain of the team, added, "It was really great when we saw all the kids come in at the Quinnipiac game. It really spurred us on. It was our first game of the season, it was a rival, and it was a close game; our spirits were really high."

Marilyn later remarked that the real letdown came at the second game which was held at Bryant—a game to which few people came. Wondering what had happened, Marilyn, speaking on behalf of the group answered, "it was sad, but the conclusion we came to was that the only way that our fans were going to go along with us was when they'd been drinking."

On the whole, the girls want their part to be effective. Some of the physical features that the girls feel have been useful in creating a good Bryant image, are the new uniforms. One of the girls noted, "the school is modern and the type of uniforms that we have just relate to what our school is all together."

This year's uniforms are black and gold and are styled in the fashion of the "layered look."

Marilyn also mentioned that the girls have ordered megaphones and hope to have them for use at the next game. It is their wish that the use of these will improve the reaction and response of those in the stands.

The next item of particular interest was the issue of recruiting boys to the Cheerleading Squad. All of the girls supported the idea with the thought in mind that males on the squad would provide a wider variance of cheers with which to convey their message. Mickey remarked that she would like to encourage this type of squad in the near future.

The cheerleaders have the advantage that all except one of them are freshman, and so the majority of them will return next year. In addition to this, Mickey mentioned that during the weekend of April 6, Bryant will hold a conference for all of the cheerleaders in Rhode Island high schools. This conference will be of a competitive nature. The hope is that girls who choose to attend Bryant from the area high schools will join next year's squad.

Letters will also be sent to girls who have already been accepted for next September in an attempt to interest them in supporting the basketball team through cheering.

In summing up, it seems that the overall picture is bright, as the cheerleaders learn new cheers, to stir their team and fans on to victory.

Wantu Wazuri Presents First Annual Black Festivals Celebration

We are proud to share with the Bryant College Community the forty-seventh annual observance of African-American History Week by means of our first Black Festivals Celebration slated for the four consecutive days of February 7-11, 1973. This annual and week-long national celebration was launched in 1926 by Dr

Carter Godwin Woodson, founder of the Association for the Study of African-American Life and History. Each of the successive annual observances has aroused the American people to a keener appreciation of cultural diversity of all the ethnic groups that comprise its citizenry.

The national celebration continues to be the pioneer effort and the core of the Black Movement in the United States and abroad. The Bryant College celebration is a first and will set a precedence for future annual observances. We'd like to thank those people from both the student constituency and the administrative-faculty constituency of the Bryant Community for their cooperation and assistance. I'd like to emphasize the fact that this is a unique experience for the entire Bryant College Community and cordially invite all of you to attend as many events as possible.

Evening Division News

Registration for this semester appears to have gone quite smoothly. A few problems were experienced with mailings and cancellations. The heavy mail registration caused many to be closed out of classes of their first choice. Unfortunately, when courses are cancelled, the class lists are not complete enough to notify all students.

It seems as though we just finished one registration and it's time for another. A tentative list of summer courses will be posted on the Evening Division Bulletin Board in about a month.

Students who expect to complete the Associate of Baccalaureate Degree requirements in June, 1973, should complete a tentative graduation card at the Evening Division Office. If you are certified, your name will be added to the list on the Bulletin Board.

Registration and course changes are closed. You may still drop a course without academic penalty until Saturday, February 24. After that date, drops, whether they be official or unofficial, will be treated as failures.

Government Claims Toys Unsafe Tests To Begin Soon

Washington News and Analysis in depth from the nation's capital by George Marder of United Press International.

Some day the government may have a safety seal stamp to place on approved toys for children.

Not yet. And that's why, it is hard sometimes impossible for a parent to know whether the toy he or she is buying for Christmas is safe for the child or not.

Example:

There are 25 thousand toy Santas around which the government has declared unsafe. No one knows just where they are.

The government tested that Santa and found that its face can be bashed in easily, leaving sharp plastic edges. Its beard can burn easily, the head can be removed easily, exposing sharp ends of staples and other hazardous material.

But by the time the government got around to declaring that particular Santa unsafe, the Kansas City manufacturer had disposed of 25 thousand of them.

Instructions were sent to field operators to go to Federal Court and get seizure orders. But it seemed to be a hopeless job. Many ended up in Mom and Pop stores, toy peddlers, and perhaps many are now in the closet waiting to be hung on a Christmas tree.

The most that the FDA felt it could do was to spread the word that that particular Santa was considered unsafe, and if a parent already had bought one, to return it and insist upon getting a refund.

The Santa is about a foot long, hard-brittle plastic smiling face, a hole in the back of the head so that it can be hung.

That problem would not exist if, as expected in the future, all toys had to be cleared before being marketed, and if the government placed a seal on safety on those approved.

Malcolm Jensen, head of the Government Bureau of Product Safety, believes that it may come to that.

In the past few days, Jensen's agency has been under sharp attack from consumer groups charging that he hasn't done enough to protect children from unsafe toys.

Jensen has retorted that there has been a tremendous improvement in the toy market this year because of activity of his bureau, especially in the elimination of what he calls the hidden hazards in small toys.

Jensen says that more than a million toys with so-called hidden hazards have been ordered off the market since last Christmas.

There is no question that the Bureau of Product Safety has banned a large number of toys.

The most common toys found unsafe were those with small noisemakers, the squeaking animal or doll type, where the device making the noise could be removed easily and swallowed by a child.

Also, doll toys which had eyes or limbs that could be removed easily, exposing sharp devices or wire tangles.

Those and wheel toys caused most of the 700,000 injuries children suffered each year while playing with toys.

But while the toys were banned, many of them still are on the market in the hands of retailers or in the hands of parents to be turned over to children at Christmas time.

A Nader outfit which shopped in 16 metropolitan areas was able to buy 382 toys banned by the FDA itself. Just why that situation should exist has never been completely explained by Jensen.

Couldn't a major effort be launched by the manufacturer to recall the toys? Wouldn't that have been at all possible? Or must the children be subjected to the danger of toys that the government already has declared unsafe?

The fact is that some manufacturers have gone so far as to kid the public in the sale of toys by labeling their own products "safe for children." There is no such approved label.

It is merely an advertising gimmick. It is possible that the "safety" label may be even attached to toys banned by the government.

Starting next year, a new law goes into effect setting up an independent government agency on product safety. It will have authority to fix certain standards for toys before they are offered to the public.

At present, the Safety Bureau, a part of the Food and Drug Administration, cannot hope to keep up with the 5,000 new toys manufactured each year.

It Was Only An Upset

by Buddy Trinkle

A week ago Monday night one of the biggest upsets in boxing history occurred in Kingston, Jamaica. The bout bearing the meaning of the championship of the world has staged between George Foreman and Joe Frazier, both of whom were undefeated. Frazier, the relentless champion, who had won twenty-nine fights, twenty-five by knockouts, had come across only four people who could last fifteen round with him in the ring. One of them was Mohammad Ali and another was the strongman from Argentina, Oscar Bonavena.

Foreman on the other hand had fought thirty-seven fights and thirty-four of them were wins by knockouts. Foreman who only five years ago was the Olympic Champion representing the United States once said he was merely a "black man who is glad to be an American." Even though Foreman had fought more times, he was still tabbed by the press as being unimpressive. Primarily because he had fought many boxers with lesser qualities than Frazier's foes, Foreman was not considered to possess one of the strongest right hands in all of boxing.

Nevertheless, Foreman came out boxing in the first round and worked on Frazier until he could hardly see straight. Foreman not only knocked Frazier down three times in one round which was unprecedented, but by fully controlling the action Foreman deflated Frazier's confidence. At the end of the first round Frazier appeared exhausted. He had been battered brutally. At the other side of the ring Foreman was sitting with a confident look on his face. He had acknowledged the fact that he could finish Frazier off without much more difficulty.

As round two began Frazier rallied back but Foreman showed why he is now the person described as being relentless. Foreman continually pounded Frazier. After knocking Frazier down two more times in the second round, without any further adue Foreman gave Frazier one last shot and the fight was declared over. Only one minute and thirty-five seconds had elapsed in the second round.

After the bout many people found themselves asking questions as to the durability of Joe Frazier. Did the fifteen round slugfest with Ali take everything out of him? Will there be a rematch? There was one other important question raised. "Could Foreman actually be that good?"

One thing is for sure, Frazier was in excellent condition. How else can you explain his getting up five times after being knocked down. Personally I don't feel that Frazier has been any less effective after the ali fight than before it. My explanation for the Frazier loss is that Frazier was hit with a punch that would have knocked out any other prominent name in the business. For being able to even come back, I would have to say that his career is far from being through unless that's the way he wants it.

My answer to the final questions is yes. Foreman has been underated because of the inferior talent that he had fought previously. Of late though, Foreman has made great strides towards becoming one of boxing's greatest.

If there is no rematch between the two, Frazier will suffer from the injustice. Foreman has said that his next endeavor will be "in the ring of the world, trying to help kids who feel they have nothing; to give them the feeling of having something." Not a bad opening quote for heavyweight boxing's new champion. Frazier reply; "I'll be back." If I were earning a living in the boxing profession, I'd take heed.

RI Show Kicks Off Boating Season

The Rhode Island Boat Show began its five-day extravaganza on Wednesday, revealing all the new boating equipment and yachts for the 1973 boating season. The show is the first exposure ever held at the new Providence Civic Center. Featured as the queen of the show is a Coronado 35-foot cruising sailboat that is fully rigged because of the clearance at the Civic Center.

Many additional highlights can be seen at the show. Movies of the America's Cup Races and presentations by Save the Bay, Inc., along with Coast Guard and Narragansett Bay Power Squadron are available at no additional charge.

Mr. Dodson, Show

Manager, says that about 40 percent of the boats on exhibit are sail and 60 percent are of power classes. He also noted that the Marine Trades Association, the show's sponsor, is planning to use the profits of the show to further the interest of boaters in Rhode Island through working for better protection of the coast and through advertising to give the Association a voice when somebody wants to put an oil refinery close by.

Many new boats are on display at the Civic Center, one of which is a Slick-Craft Jet Boat, powered by a hefty, 245-horsepower engine that can reach speeds of 40 miles an hour then stop in the length of the boat (19 feet). There are also a few new sailboats for the '73 boating season in Rhode Island; namely, the Lark and Skipper 14.

The Boat Show began on Wednesday and will run through Sunday. Hours are from Noon to 10 p.m. on Saturday and Noon to 7 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children.

This show is a fine event to attend and gives everyone an excellent chance to view the new Providence Civic Center in all its glory.

Chose The Correct Score

The ARCHWAY will give $5 to any student who can correctly guess the score of any of the remaining Bryant basketball games. All entries must be in at least 24 hours before the game. Each Bryant student or faculty member can submit only one guess. These predictions will be deposited in the box outside the ARCHWAY office. If there is no correct prediction, then the money will be kept for the next game. One exception will be made: since the ARCHWAY comes out on Friday and there is a home game this Saturday, all predictions can be deposited no later than 2:00 Saturday afternoon. Please make your prediction on nothing larger than a 3x5" file card and include your name, address, phone number, and the score you predict. Also list the Bryant Team and the opposing team's name. Example: Mickey Perlow, Bryant Gym, 231-0000, Bryant 104, UCLA 28. The winner or winners can collect their money the following day in the ARCHWAY office. Please attend the games for the success of the team rests on the rooting of the entire Bryant Community. This contest is not open to Bryant Basketball players, coaches, or cheerleaders. The preceding announcement was made on behalf of the ARCHWAY to promote a successful finish to an already successful season.

SPEAKING TO THE PROS

New York Knicks

by Jeff Doppelt

This past Sunday I went to see the Knicks and Celts play at Boston Garden with former Sports Editor, Steven Diamond. We decided to interview the winning team and the Knicks won 96-93.

Jeff Doppelt: Is there any grudge match between you and Havlicek? I noticed you were guarding him very tight.

Bill Bradley: No. There's very little contact out there. I think we both play each other's position as opposed to contact.

JD: I noticed for the first time that you were playing guard. What's all this shuffling around?

BB: Well, we play to our strength and our strength today was that. I thought this was a real good example of all of our team. We don't possess any real overpowering strength but we possess a great deal of versatility and I think that came out today.

Steve Diamond: What was the coach's assignment when he sent you in to guard Havlicek?

BB: Nothing. They run the same plays. They have run the same plays for twelve years. They have great simple plays and they run them very well. They're a great team and we're glad to win.

JD: What do you feel your greatest disadvantage as a pro is, and how do you overcome it?

BB: Speed, quickness, I can't overcome it. I've learned to live with it.

JD: What do you think your greatest advantage is?

BB: Shooting, hitting the open shot.

JD: What do you expect in the future as far as the shuffling around is concerned. Today Bill Bradley played guard, or is that just because Earl Monroe was not here?

Dave DeBusschere: Well, that's part of it because Earl wasn't here; but that all depends on the team we play. We might not shuffle as much against certain teams.

JD: During the game you had a lead of 17 points. Was there anything you did differently in the second-half that allowed the Celtics to catch up?

DD: Well, it's typical of a New York-Boston game in that it's a game of spurts. The same as the game was last night. We'd go for a while and then they'd go for a while. It just seems like it's been this way all season long in games between these two teams. We spurted to a 17-point lead and then all of a sudden they just put it together and choked off a real good rally and we couldn't do anything about it.

SD: Would you say you have better success in running with the Celtics or trying to slow the game down?

DD: Well, we pick our spots. I don't think we can run with them for a whole game. We like to run against them but the thing is you make a mistake if you let them control the game; and when they do that, they'll run you right off the floor. We try to pick our times to slow it up a lot and that kind of frustrates them a little bit.

JD: Do you have any thoughts of retirement?

DD: As long as I feel healthy, I think I'm going to continue. Right now I feel healthy and I feel strong. When it really gets to me, then I'm going to hang them up.

SD: Good game, Dick. It seems that you're getting your rhythm back. Do you feel good?

Dick Barnett: I feel good. This is a hell of an interview, man.

JD: Are you looking to play more, or are you satisfied with what you're contributing right now?

DB: No, I'm not satisfied; but what can you do?

JD: When you come in the game and Reed is at center, exactly what are you supposed to play?

Jerry Lucas: Well, I've been playing center most of the year.

team. Our club is a veteran ball club. We have a lot of experience.

We are the type of club that's not going to get flustered, we're not going to lose our poise in any situation whether the crowd is up, whether it looks bad, whether we're losing a big lead like we were today, we're a veteran club, we hold our poise, and we're able to come through most of the times in those situations.

SD: Do you know when a technical is going to be called on you?

JL: Well, you don't really from behind in a game?

Walt Frazier: No! I'd rather be ahead.

SD: Then when you lose your momentum you have to get it back.

WF: Not necessarily. You can be ahead and still gain momentum. A team that runs like them, you have to just keep coming and keep the pressure on them.

JD: What happened last week in Houston? Do you think the fact that your sneaker came off had anything to do with Newlin York Knicks right now. When you go into the game, what goes through your mind. Do you have to psyche them?

Dean Meminger: No, not really at this particular time. I knew Earl's mother had died and I was mentally prepared for the game. I felt we had to run against Boston to counteract their fast break so that's what we did and as a result we got a lot of good shots.

SD: You seemed to be under the boards a couple of times today. Do you like getting in with the big boys?

DM: Well, not really. I don't like to mix it up too much. I just try to sneak in every once in a while and get a couple of rebounds.

JD: Dean, you seem to be the leader of the Knicks' fast break and I know you like to drive for the basket.

DM: Well, what happens is it depends what the situation is. I usually try to get the ball out quickly because we probably have one of the best shooting teams in the NBA. If you get the ball out you can create things like semi-fast break, 10-foot jumper, you begin to make lay-ups and get fouled.

JD: Last time the Knicks were in Boston, Cowens played excellent. He scored 38 points against you. Was it that you weren't ready for him because today it looked like a different Willis Reed out there?

Willis Reed: Well, the biggest problem was that Cowens had a good night. It was one of those nights he couldn't do anything wrong. Like today, I thought he had some good moves but he missed some easy shots. If the ball had gone in it might have been a different ballgame. I don't think I did anything especially. I just think he didn't make the shots when he had them.

SD: Are you still working on any particular part of your game that is not back 100%?

WR: Well, my shooting did not remain consistent during the ballgame. That kind of disturbed me. I got into a hot streak and then it went the other way. All I worry about is that I can play good strong defense and make a contribution.

SD: You seem to have more confidence in your shot. You know when you are going to shoot. Do you feel any difference?

WR: Well, I think you get back into the flow of the game. You stop worrying about everything. I'm just trying to go out and play.

SD: When Lucas got the technical called on him did that really upset you?

Red Holtzman: You don't like to see anybody get a technical. I don't like to see myself get one.

SD: When you get a technical, do you know it's coming. Do you feel you want one?

RH: Do I feel I want one? Very seldom. Very seldom.

SD: Well, good luck.

RH: Okay. Thank you.

A tape recorder was used during the interview and the questions and answers are basically a word-for-word repeat.

New York Knicks' Jerry Lucas (32) knocks down rebound while battling for ball with Celtics' John Havlicek (L) during 1st quarter action at Boston Garden.

The reason Red used me in this series was to offset Silas' strong board game. My job is to go in there and keep him off the offensive boards and I was effective. I think this is something you'd have to do against this club because Paul is big and strong and if you don't concentrate on him he can hurt you. If he has a smaller man on him he can get the ball and put it back in or keep it alive. I was able to keep him out of there and that was basically my job during the series.

SD: How do you overcome the crowd when the momentum is changing?

JL: We don't play against the crowd, we play against the other know. You don't know what they're going to do. I've seen players go out there and be so abusive it's unbelievable and not get a technical. I simply was trying to tell him to call the first foul. I felt that I was fouled three times before he called the foul on me. Obviously, they didn't see it and then he called the foul on me. I just think the call was made the wrong way and I asked him to look for the first foul and he called a technical on me.

SD: Just on that simple statement?

JL: Just on that simple statement. Yes!

SD: Would you rather come making that last shot?

WF: No! He made a good shot. I had good position on him.

JD: Were you looking for a steal on that last play?

WF: I would have. I don't think he even would have tried to shoot the ball if my shoe didn't come off.

JD: What were the Knicks going to try to do had they got the ball in?

WF: The shot was for Bradley. He was to come around for a pick. It never materialized.

SD: Dean, you seem to be just the spark plug of the New

Bryant Shows Well

In First Tri-Meet

by Peter Lockatell

Last Saturday afternoon, the Bryant Swim Team journeyed to Southeastern Mass. University for an inaugural tri-meet with Boston College and SMU. Even though Bryant finished third out of three teams in the meet, the results boasted fine efforts by some of the team members. John Johnston, Bryant's best swimmer to date, Arthur Burrows, John Copley, Charlie Derdarian and the 400 yard freestyle relay team, which helped amass the forty-nine team points that Bryant received in the meet.

All through the fall and Christmas vacation, John Johnston has been working hard for his long distance freestyle events. The results proved more than satisfactory to John and Coach Gerald Sussman. John scored Bryant's first points of the year with a fine 12:43.1 in the 1,000 yad freestyle.

When it looked Bryant might be headed for a shellacking, John helped save the day. He warded off a fine finish by Gross of B.C. to win the 500 yard freestyle with a 5:59.6 timing. While Johnston was proving most of the heroics, Art Burrows, teammate Yucoubian finished second with a 91.15 total diving points. Wayne Shvenberger took third for Bryant and teammate Matt Staropoli took fourth with a 46.05 diving total. In the three meter diving, B.C. was still number one. B.C.'s Wood was unbelievable in capturing the event. He was flawless in executing difficult twists and somersaults.

Outside of Wood's heroics, the event belonged to Bryant. Matt Staropoli came back to finish second with 32.90 points, while Shoenberger finished third with 22.25 points. Thus, in diving, Bryant picked a handsome twelve points.

Other sidelights in the meet, was the performance of the Bryant 400 yard freestlye relay team. Hastily put together at the last moment, the relay took a second with a 4:01.9. The relay team's splits were Copley 102.3, Rafferty 59.1, Brown 1:03.6 and Johnston :56.9. Coach Sussman feels the team could be one of the best in New England.

Mark Rafferty turned in a good showing in the 200 yard butterfly. Mark finished third with a time of 3:26.9. Other Bryant swimmers

Quinnipiac Jinks Bryant Again 80-65

by Rolfe Schnur

Ray Depelteau's 25 points were not enough to offset the balanced Quinnipiac attack Wednesday evening as the Indians lost their 4th game in 15 attempts. Quinnipiac led by Ed Roulhac, Franklin Johnson, and Walty opened a 32-17 lead in the first half at the Quinnipiac lead. Aggressive Gonzlaes snared an offensive rebound and threw it in for a three point deficit 48-45 with 14:12 left in the game. Bryant and Quinnipiac exchanged baskets for the next 7 minutes which was climaxed most of the dejected Indian fans who wanted to see our Quinnipiac jinx stopped. Bryant's sub par shooting game was a large reason for the poor first half. Braves pulled away to win 80-65. The game was a definite disappointment for and from then on Bryant fought an uphill struggle. With 2:22 left in the first half Ray tallied a 3 point play to narrow the Brave lead to 36-26 but Bryant again faltered. At the half Quinnipiac led 43-32.

The second half of the game proved to be more exciting for the Bryant fans as the Indians continually cut by 6'7" Bob Moll's pretty lefty hook which left the score at 55-53. With the Bryant fans finally alive and the score 59-56 Quinnipiac, Bruce Stewart squirted a layup through the hoop and we trailed by 1, 59-58. This was the closest we ever got as Bob Vacca of Quinnipiac started hitting his howitzer from downtown and the Bryant's Mark Rafferty on his way to a 3rd Place finish in the 200-yard Butterfly.

John Copley and Charley Derdarian. Burrows, a fine IM man, found the 200 yard breast much to his liking last Saturday. Art took a third place in the event and a 2:54.3 clocking. Charley Derdarian also took a place in the same event Charley finished a important fourth with a 3:06.5, as Bryant a heaping five points in the event. John Copley was successful in the 200 yard backstroke. He finished third with a time of 2:55.4.

In the diving competition, Bryant divers staged an upset in the three meter spring board competition. In the one meter diving, Boston College showed its diving powers. B.C.'s Wood piled up 134.05 total for first place, while scoring points in the meet were Kevin Gay, Jeff Millman, Doug Emery, Jim Smith, Tim O'Brien, and Steve Mungovan. Considering the condition that Bryant came into the meet, their performance left much hope for the remainder of the season. Swimmers and divers will have to eventually have to get over current limitations in their training, if they hope to be successful.

All Bryant swimmers will have a chance to improve their current times this coming Wednesday when Bryant meets Assumption at the Worcester Y. The starting time for the meet will be 9:00 at night. Once again, the final score of last week's tri-meet was Boston College 84, SMU 58 and Bryant 49.

INDIANS DOWN SMU 71 - 64

by Michael Kata

Ray Depelteau scores on a reverse lay-up in the closing seconds of the first half against SMU.

The Bryant Indians, with some strong rebounding from forward Henry Gonzalez, defeated the Corsairs of Southeastern Massachusetts University 71-64 last Monday night at the losers' court. The win was the fifth in a row for Bryant and gives the Indians an impressive 11-3 record.

The Indians, playing a tough zone defense, never trailed in the game as they jumped out to a 14-5 lead during their first seven minutes on the court. The Indians increased their lead to 20-9 when guard Ned Bohan drove down the middle of the SMU defense and put in a nifty one-hander with 8:50 showing on the clock. The Indians led by as many as thirteen late in the first half, but a stubborn SMU team cut the lead to 9 as the teams went to their locker rooms for halftime with the score at 34-25.

In the second half, SMU, taking advantage of numerous Indian turnovers rallied during the first ten minutes to cut the Indians' lead to just 5. During this span, 6'6" center Mike Roy scored 16 of his 24 game points for the Corsairs of SMU. But five points was as close as SMU was to come, however, as Bryant's superior rebounding began taking its toll. A jump shot by co-captain Bruce Stewart gave Bryant a 63-52 lead with 6:13 remaining. With a little over a minute and a half left, Bryant led 70-59 and the outcome was of little doubt. The final score read Bryant, 71; SMU, 64.

Bruce Stewart led all Bryant scorers with 19 points while Depelteau and Gonzalez scored 17 and 16 points respectively. Henry Gonzalez also led all rebounders with an amazing 23.

Bryant also won the

It seems these days that the Bryant College Indians are trying to make their games as close with an exciting a finish as possible. The fact remains that they are still winning. However, winning is not the word to use when we play Suffolk University. Playing in the Cambridge YMCA the Indians have lost to Suffolk five of the last six years. The other year we played here and the results were the same. That was last year and first time all year it was played on a court with wooden backboards. Despite this handicap, lead by the shooting of Ray Depelteau, Bryant jumped out to a 20-10 lead. This was short-lived as Suffolk outscored Bryant 18-6 to take a two point lead. The half ended with the score tied 32 all. Ray Depelteau and Bruce Stewart did almost all of the scoring for Bryant. Depelteau had 16 points and Stewart 12 points.

lead and it looked like they were going to pull away.

Suffolk again drew close and when Dascoli hit another jump shot Suffolk had the lead 62-61. Ray Depelteau scored for the Indians but Dascoli came back with another basket for Suffolk to give them the lead once again 64-63. Now there was only about three minutes left in the game but the Indians put it all together. Depelteau, Stewart, Bohan, and Sorafine scored crucial baskets and we lost 77-73. The year before (1970-71 season) we lost 86-73. The year before that (1969-70 season) we lost 83-75, and so forth. However, it was not until Dave Sorafine hit two foul line jumpers that Bryant had secured its first victory over Suffolk in seven years.

The Indians now 10-3 were forced to play under unusual circumstances. The game started 3 o'clock last Friday afternoon, and for the sub-varsity game by the score of 71-68 with Billy Goudailler scoring 22 points. The Bryant sub-varsity record not stands at 5-1 with all five victories in a row.

The second half was rather close as both teams exchanged baskets. Ned Bohan then came off the bench and it seemed like a shooting contest between him and Suffolk's Tony Dascoli. Bohan hit six consecutive outside jumpers while Dascoli scored 22 points most of them in the second half on outside jumpers too. However, with Ray Depelteau continuing to score, Bryant took a 61-55 the Indians won another close one 72-65.

Ray Depelteau ended the game with his top performance of the season scoring 28 points. Ned Bohan had 13 points all in the second half, and Dave Sorafine pulled down 10 rebounds. It might be said here that the Indians should not schedule anymore games at Suffolk, but having lost 7 out of 11 to them we still have a score to settle.

Bryant To Host Nasson Here Tomorrow Night

by Michael Kata

The Bryant Indians, currently 4-0 in the Naismith Conference and 11-4 overall, will face their toughest conference test Saturday Night when they play host to Nasson College in a game slated to start at 8:00 in the Bryant Gym.

Nasson, who upset the Indians last season almost did it again this year as the Indians escaped with a narrow 66-65 decision up in Maine. Still looking for their first conference championship, Nasson will come into the game with a 3-2 record in the conference which puts them in second place, a game and a half behind Bryant. Nasson was upset last Wednesday night when they were downed by Gordon 51-48 while Bryant was losing to Quinnipiac.

In other Indian news, co-captain Ray Depelteau continues his quest to become a member of Bryant's 1,000-Point Club. As of today, the 6'4" forward needs only 49 points to become the fifth member of this elite club. Depelteau is currently averaging 18.7 points a game and at this pace, he should become a member of Bryant's 1000 Point Club against the University of New Haven on February 8 at the Bryant Gym.

Come early and see our sub-varsity tangle with J & W. Paul Melvin continued with a hothand (21 points) in the Quinnipiac game. Paul's hot shooting will be much needed next year. Season's records: Varsity 11-4, sub-varsity 6-1. See you Saturday at 6:15. Let the common bond of team and college spirit bring the college together as the Bryant Indians try to win the Naismith Conference again!
